How to cite archival materials:

Note: As with any other citation, ensure you are providing sufficient information for any other researcher to be able to easily locate your sources.

Abbreviations are entirely appropriate, but all acronyms should be written out in full at the first occurrence, followed by the acronym in parenthesis. A brief citation should contain the following information:

1. Name of the institution responsible for the custody of the records or catalogues
2. Full catalogue reference: the alphanumeric code used to identify, describe and order the record
3. Internal identifier: details of the folio, page, docket, membrane or other number within the piece (the container box, volume, folio, bundle, roll and so on).
4. In some cases you may need to include the extended reference, that is the full series title, which may provide useful context information.
